Parliament-Street, July 21, 1798.

THE Diſpatches, of which the following are Copies, were received on the 17th Inſtant by the Right Honorable Henry Dundas, one of His Majeſty's Principal Secretaries of State, from Major-Generals Coote and Burrard; no Opportunity to tranſmit them having occurred until the Return of Mr. Jobernes, by whom they were forwarded.

SIR, Oſtend, June 23, 1798.

NOT having had it in my Power to ſend my Diſpatches by my Aid-de-Camp, Captain Williamſon, I take the Opportunity by Mr. Joberne the Staff-Surgeon, who was ordered to Oſtend by His Royal Highneſs the Commander in Chief.

I have the Honor to be, &c. &c. &c.

EYRE COOTE, Maj. Gen.

Right Hon. Henry Dundas,
&c. &c. &c.

On a Ridge of Sand-Hills, three Miles to the Eaſt of Oſtend, May 19, 1798.

SIR,

I Have the moſt ſincere Satisfaction to acquaint you of the complete and brilliant Succeſs attending the Expedition entruſted by His Majeſty to the Care of Captain Popham, of the Royal Navy, and myſelf. The Squadron reached Oſtend about One o'Clock this Morning.

The able and judicious Arrangements of Captain Popham, and great Exertions of himſelf, the Officers and Seamen under his Command, enabled us to diſembark the Troops at the Place from which I have the Honor of dating this Diſpatch; and from Captain Popham's local Knowledge, I gained ſuch Information as very much removed the Difficulties we had to encounter on Shore, and contributed greatly to the Succeſs of the Enterprize.

General Sir Charles Grey ſent you, Sir, an Outline of the Diſpoſition of the Troops, and of the Plans, previous to our ſailing from Margate; theſe were carried into Execution, with a little Alteration, which I was obliged to make, in conſequence of the whole of the Troops not having landed.

Soon after we diſembarked, I detached Major-General Burrard, with Four Companies of Light Infantry of the Guards, the 23d and 49th Grenadiers, and Two Six-Pounders, to take Poſſeſſion of the different Poſts and Paſſes that it was neceſſary to occupy to enable us to carry our Plans into Execution. In effecting this he met with ſtrong Oppoſition from a conſiderable Body of Sharp Shooters, who were gallantly repulſed with ſome Loſs, and by a rapid March cut off from the Town of Oſtend.

During the Time Lieutenant Brownrigg, of the Engineers, was employed in bringing up the Powder and other Materials to effect the Deſtruction of the Sluices of the Bruges Canal, the Troops were poſted as follows: The Grenadiers of the 11th and 23d Regiments with Cannon, &c. at the Lower Ferry, to prevent the Enemy croſſing from Oſtend. A Detachment of Colonel Campbell's Company of the Guards, under the Command of Captain Duff, and the Grenadiers of the 49th Regiment, under the Command of Captain Lord Aylmer, at the Upper Ferry for the ſame Purpoſe. The Remainder of Colonel Campbell's, with three other Companies of the Guards, under the Command of Colonel Calcraft, at the Sluices and Country around, to cover the Operation.

The 11th Regiment on the South Eaſt Front, to ſecure a ſafe Retreat for the Troops, if preſſed.

The Light Infantry Companies of the 11th and 23d Regiments, under Major Donkin, to cover the Village of Bredin, and extend to the Blankenburg Road near the Sea, as well as to co-operate with the 11th Regiment.

The greater Part of the 23d Regiment remained on board the Ships of War, ſtationed to the Weſtward of the Town; as well to divert the Enemy's Attention to that Point, as to land and ſpike the Cannon, ſhould an Opportunity offer.

By the Time the Troops were properly poſted, the neceſſary Materials were brought up to the Sluices, by the indefatigable Exertions and extraordinary good Conduct of Captains Winthrop, Bradby, and M'Kellar, and Lieutenant Bradby, of the Royal Navy, whoſe Services on Shore cannot be too highly praiſed.

Lieutenant Brownrigg, of the Royal Engineers, in about Four Hours made all his Arrangements, and completely deſtroyed the Sluices; his Mines having in every Particular the deſired Effect; and the Object of the Expedition thereby attained; and which, I have the Satisfaction to add, was accompliſhed with the trifling Loſs of only Five Men killed and wounded. Several Veſſels of conſiderable Burthen were alſo deſtroyed in the Canal near the Sluices.

No Danger even for an Inſtant abated the Ardor of the Seamen and Soldiers.—To their Unanimity His Majeſty and the Country are indebted for our Succeſs.

No Language of mine can do Juſtice to the Forces employed upon this Occaſion; and, as it is impoſſible to name each Individual, I beg Leave to ſtate the great Exertions of a few.

To that excellent Officer, Major-General Burrard, I ſhall feel everlaſting Obligation: To his Council, Exertions, and Ability, I am in a great Meaſure to attribute the Succeſs of the Enterprize.

His Majeſty's Guards, conſpicuous upon all Occaſions, on this Service have added to their former Laurels. To Colonel Calcraft, who commanded them; Colonels Cunningham and Campbell, of the ſame Corps; Major Skinner, of the 23d Regiment, commanding the Grenadiers; Major Donkin, of the 44th Regiment, commanding the Light Infantry; and Captain Walker, commanding the Royal Artillery; I feel myſelf much indebted for their good Conduct in the various Services in which I employed them.

In Lieutenant Brownrigg, of the Royal Engineers, I found infinite Ability and Reſource. His Zeal and Attention were eminently conſpicuous; and in my opinion this Gentleman bids fair to be of great future Service to his Country.

I ſhould not do Juſtice to the Zeal and Spirit of Lieutenant Gilham, of the Suſſex Militia, if I did not ſtate to you that, anxious to be employed in the Service of his Country, and to learn his Profeſſion, he applied to his Commanding Officer at Dover, the Night before we ſailed, for Permiſſion to join our Force. He left Dover in a violent Gale of Wind and came on board the Morning we got under Weigh. I attached him to Colonel Campbell's Company of the Battalion of Guards, where he acquitted himſelf much to his Honor.

Captain Viſſcher, Sir Charles Grey's Aid-de-Camp, Captain Williamſon, my Aid-de-Camp, and Major of Brigade Thorley, I ſent to attend the Guards, Light Infantry, and Grenadiers, in their different Poſitions, as well to give their Aſſiſtance to the reſpective Commanding Officers, as to apprize me of any Circumſtance that might occur, ſo as to require my immediate Information, they being thoroughly acquainted with the Nature of the Expedition. They conducted themſelves to my moſt perfect Satisfaction, as did Lieutenant Cliften, of the Royal Artillery, who attended me, Captain Cumberland of the 83d Regiment, and Cornet Nixen of the 7th Light Dragoons, who acted as Aids-de-Camp to Major-General Burrard.

In my Letter of the 13th Inſtant, I had the Honor to inform you of my having accepted the Services of Mr. Jarvis, a Surgeon of Margate. His great Attention was unremitting, and his Conduct upon this Occaſion is highly praiſeworthy.

To Colonel Twiſs I ſhall ever feel great Obligation for the able Aſſiſtance he gave me at Dover, in preparing the neceſſary Inſtruments for deſtroying the Sluice-Gates, as well as for the Inſtruction he was ſo kind to give Lieutenant Brownrigg for this Service.

As a Feint to cover the Operation of bringing up the Materials, and of deſtroying the Sluices, Captain Popham and myſelf ſent a Summons to the Commandant of Oſtend, to ſurrender the Town and its Dependencies to His Majeſty's Forces under our Command, which had the deſired Effect. I have the Honor to incloſe you a Copy of the Summons, with the Commandant's Anſwer.

By an unavoidable Accident, the Four Light Companies of the 1ſt Guards, under the Command of Lieutenant-Colonels Warde and Boone, were not landed in the Morning; I think it however but Juſtice to declare, that every Thing that brave Men then could attempt was done at the imminent Riſk of their Lives to accompliſh it; and I am conſcious the Zeal and Courage they manifeſted to partake in the Dangers of their Brother Soldiers, would have made them ample Sharers in any Honor to be acquired, or Danger to be encountered on Shore, had they been able to reach it.

I have ſent a Diſpatch to Sir Charles Grey by his Aid-de-Camp, Captain Viſſcher; and Captain Williamſon, my Aid-de-Camp, will have the Honor to deliver you this. Both theſe Gentlemen are well qualified to give you any farther Information, and I beg Leave to recommend them to your Notice and Protection.

I have the Honor to be, &c. &c. &c.

EYRE COOTE, Major-General.

Right Hon. Henry Dundas,
&c. &c. &c.

Copy of the Summons ſent for the Town of Oſtend, &c. to ſurrender. Dated Eaſt of the Harbour of Oſtend, May 19, 1798.

SIR,

WE the Officers commanding the Sea and Land Forces of His Majeſty the King of Great Britain, think it neceſſary to apprize you, that we ſhall be obliged to bombard and cannonade the Town of Oſtend, unleſs you, as Commandant, ſhall immediately ſurrender the ſame, with its Dependencies, Troops, and Military Stores belonging to the Republic, to the Arms of our Sovereign.

We leave to you to take into your ſerious Conſideration the very formidable Force now lying before the Town and Port of Oſtend, as you cannot but be reſponſible for the Conſequences of a vain and fruitleſs Reſiſtance.

We are willing to grant Half an Hour for your full Conſideration of the above Terms, and are convinced that your Humanity and good Senſe will point out the neceſſary Steps to be taken to accede to our Propoſals, as, in Default thereof, we ſhall be under the Neceſſity of immediately commencing Hoſtilities.

We have the Honor to be, &c. &c. &c.

EYRE COOTE, Major-General.

Commandant of Oſtend.

LIBERTY. EQUALITY.

Muſcar, Commandant of the Garriſon of Oſtend, to the Commander in Chief of the Troops of His Britannic Majeſty.

GENERAL,

THE Council of War was ſitting when I received the Honor of your Letter; we have unanimouſly reſolved not to ſurrender this Place until we ſhall have been buried under its Ruins.

(Signed) MUSCAR,
Commandant of the Garriſon.

SIR, Oſtend, May 20, 1798.

MAJOR-General Coote, in his Diſpatch Yeſterday, had the Honor to inform you of the brilliant Succeſs of the Enterprize, of which he had the Command, as far as related to the Deſtruction of the Gates and Sluices of the Canal of Bruges.

The General having been ſeverely wounded this Morning, I have the painful Taſk of detailing our unavoidable Surrender ſoon after.

On our Return Yeſterday to the Beach at Eleven o'Clock A. M. where we had diſembarked, we found that, from an Increaſe of Wind and Surf, our Communication with the Fleet was nearly cut off, and that it was impoſſible to re-embark the troops. The General, well aware of the Riſk we ran in ſtaying in an Enemy's Country, naturally exaſperated againſt us for the Damage we had recently done them, attempted to get off ſome Companies, but the Boats ſoon filled with Water, and it was with extreme Difficulty the Lives of the Men were ſaved. It then became neceſſary to examine carefully the Ground we were likely to fight upon; and ſuch a Choice was made as might have inſured us Succeſs, had any thing like an equal Force preſented itſelf.

Major-General Coote took every Precaution the Evening and the Night afforded to make our Poſt among the Sand Hills upon the Shore as tenable as poſſible, by directing Lieutenant Brownrigg, of the Royal Engineers, to make ſmall Entrenchments where it was neceſſary, and, by planting the few Field Pieces and the Howitzer we had on the moſt favorable Spots, to annoy the Enemy in their Approach to attack us.

In momentary Expectation of them, we impatiently looked for a favourable Opportunity to get into our Boats, but unfortunately it never preſented itſelf.

About Four o'Clock this Morning, (the Wind and Surf having encreaſed during the Night,) we perceived plainly Two ſtrong Columns of the Enemy advancing on our Front, and ſoon after we found ſeveral other Columns upon our Flanks.

The Action began by a Cannonade from their Horſe Artillery, which was anſwered from our Field Pieces and Howitzer with great Animation. Our Artillery was ſerved admirably; and had not the Enemy ſoon after turned our Flanks, which, from their very great Numbers, could not be prevented, they would have paid dear indeed for any Advantage their Superiority of Numbers gave them. The Force they employed, we have ſince found, was aſſembled from Ghent, Bruges, and Dunkirk; and General Coote and myſelf were very ſoon convinced that our Caſe was deſperate, and that we had no Choice left but to defend our Poſt, ſuch as it was, for the Honor of His Majeſty's Arms, as long as we were able. We maintained this very ſevere and unequal Conflict for nearly Two Hours, in which extreme hot Fire was interchanged, particularly on our Left Flank, which, as well as our Right, was now completely turned. Wiſhing, however, to make one ſtrong Effort, Major-General Coote ordered Major Donkin, of the 44th Regiment, on the Left, with a Company of Light Infantry, to endeavour to turn that Flank of the Enemy which had made moſt Impreſſion upon us, and Colonel Campbell, with his own Light Company of the Guards, to effect the ſame Purpoſe by a concealed and rapid March round the Sand Hills. The uncommon Exertions of theſe two invaluable Officers, when the Signal was made for them to advance, are above all Praiſe; their Companies in the Attempt were much cut down, and Colonel Campbell and Major Donkin, with One Subaltern (Captain Duff), were wounded. About this Time Major-General Coote perceived that Part of the 11th Regiment, towards our Left, had given way, and was likely to diſtreſs the other Parts of the Front neareſt to it. At the Moment he was endeavouring to rally them, and had put himſelf at their Head to regain the loſt and advantageous Ground from which they had retreated, at that moſt critical Period, when moſt conſpicuous for Gallantry and Conduct, he received a very ſevere Wound in his Thigh; and being unable to go on, he ſent for me from the Right, where I was ſtationed.

We both found that our Front was broken, and our Flanks completely turned, the Enemy pouring in upon us on all Sides, and ſeveral valuable Officers and many of our beſt Men killed and wounded. It was evident we could not hold out for Ten Minutes longer; and therefore we thought it more our Duty to preſerve the Lives of the brave Men we commanded, than to ſacrifice them to what, we conceived, was a miſtaken Point of Honor. Had we acted differently, it is probable that in leſs Time than what I have juſt mentioned, their Fate would have been decided by the Bayonet.

Major-General Coote, by whoſe Bed I am Writing, has enjoined me to repeat the Praiſes (and I am Witneſs he has juſtly beſtowed them) on the Officers and Men which he had the Honor to mention in his Diſpatch of Yeſterday. And we hope, that although we have not been finally ſucceſsful in reimbarking, our Conduct and Exertions, in having effected the Object of the Enterprize, will be deemed honorable by His Majeſty and our Country; and we rely upon His gracious Acceptance of our Endeavors and Zeal in the Attempt to extricate the Troops entruſted to our Charge from Difficulties both unavoidable and inſurmountable.

Major-General Coote and myſelf would willingly beſtow Praiſe where it is due, but, among many Competitors, it is difficult to ſelect without appearing to overlook others well deſerving. We have, Sir, however, the Honor of mentioning to you Colonel Campbell of the Third Guards Light Infantry, and Major Donkin of the 44th, whoſe Conduct, if any Thing could have protracted our Fate, had been equal to the Difficulty of effecting it. Captain Walker commanding the Royal Artillery, Captains Wilſon and Godfrey, and Lieutenants Simpſon, Hughes, and Holcroft, all of the ſame diſtinguiſhed Corps, after having done every Thing which Men could do, ſpiked their Guns, and threw them over the Banks, at the Moment the Enemy were poſſeſſing themſelves of them. The latter Gentleman, Lieutenant Holcroft, when all his Men were wounded except one, remained at his Gun doing Duty with it to the beſt of his Ability. Captain Gibbs of the 11th, and Captain Halkett of the 23d Light Infantry, eminently diſtinguiſhed themſelves by their cool intrepid Conduct during the whole Time.

All the Gentlemen of the Staff conducted themſelves much to the Satisfaction of Major-General Coote and myſelf.

To Captain Cumberland of the 83d, and Cornet Nixon of the 7th Light Dragoons, who flatteringly offered to accompany me, and who acted as my Aide-Camp, I am much indebted; their Attention and Activity I found of moſt material Service.

Mr. Lowen, Volunteer, attached to the 23d Light Infantry, was twice wounded, and was particularly conſpicuous, and remarked as a moſt promiſing Soldier. We think it but Juſtice to the Enemy to ſay, that our wounded are treated with Humanity, many of them are in the Hoſpital of this Town, and are well attended by their Surgeons.

Our Numbers on Shore were about 1000 Men, of which we are afraid there are from 100 to 150 killed and wounded. The Enemy, by all Accounts, have loſt about the ſame Number; but it is impoſſible to give any juſt Return of the Number we have loſt till we hear from Bruges, where the Priſoners were ſent.

I have the Honor to be, &c. &c.

(Signed) HARRY BURRARD,
Major-General.

The Right Hon. Henry Dundas,
&c. &c. &c.

To the Right Hon. Henry Dundas,

Whitehall, July 21, 1798.

A Dispatch, of which the following is a Copy, has been received from the Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, by his Grace the Duke of Portland, His Majesty's Principal Secretary of State for the Home Department.

My Lord, Dublin Castle, July 15, 1798.

I Have the Honor to acquaint your Grace, that it being reported that the Mountains of Wicklow were a Receptacle for Bodies of Rebel Fugitives, I directed Lieutenant-General Lake to move different Columns, in various Directions, to clear that Part of the Country. He returned To-day to Dublin, and reports, that he was not able to find any Body whatever assembled in any Part of that District.

The Lieutenant-General gives the highest Credit to the Perseverance and Spirit of the Troops during very long and difficult Marches through a Country almost inaccessible for Troops.

On Monday laſt the Rebels, which had been in the Mountains, paſſed over to the Bog of Allen. On Wedneſday they attacked, with a Body of about 1500, the Town of Clon, and where they were repulſed with the Loſs of Sixty Men by Colonel Blake, who marched from Mullingar, and attacked them with about Fifty Infantry, and as many Yeomen Cavalry. This Body of Rebels, after their Defeat, proceeded towards Kilcock, and were purſued till Night by a Detachment under Brigadier-General Meyrick. The Rebel Army advanced to Dunboyne, and on Friday moved to Garriſtown-Hill, whither I ordered Major-General Myers, with a Detachment of the Royal Buckinghamſhire Militia and Yeomanry from the Garriſon of Dublin, to purſue them. The Rebels, however, went off for the Boyne, and paſſed it; but were checked near Stackallen by Cavalry detached from two Columns commanded by Major-General Wemyſs and Brigadier-General Meyrick, who had aſſembled on the Road to Slane. And I have the Honor to tranſmit to your Grace a Copy of a Letter received by my Military Secretary, Captain Taylor, from Major-General Wemyſs, giving an Account of the Action.

I have the further Satisfaction to acquaint your Grace, that laſt Night, about Seven o'Clock, Captain Gordon, of the Dumfries Fencibles, with a Detachment of Infantry and Cavalry, fell in with that Part of the Rebels which had returned acroſs the Boyne near Garriſtown, killed Twenty of them, and took 200 Horſes.

I have the Honour to be, &c. &c.

CORNWALLIS.

His Grace the Duke of Portland,
&c. &c. &c.

SIR, Drogheda, July 15, 1798.

HAVING received Information from different Quarters on Friday Afternoon that a large Body of Rebels had aſſembled about Garriſtown, and were marching towards this, I went out with what Force I thought it prudent to take from the Garriſon here to Duleek, where I arrived at Ten o'Clock at Night the 13th, and got Information that the Rebels were ſtrongly poſted upon a Hill Three Miles off to the Right. Not knowing the Country, I remained in Duleek till One o'Clock. When I marched to the Hill, I found the Rebels left it on our coming into Duleek the Evening before, and halted at a Village near it. I followed them to the Village. They had left it about Five Hours before towards Slane. I thought it probable, from a Note I had received from General Meyrick, that he was to march from Taragh Hill to attack the Rebels at Garriſtown, that I ſhould hear of him at the Black Lion, and went on about half a Mile, when I ſaw General Meyrick's Diviſion coming into the Black Lion. We immediately proceeded by two Roads towards Slane, as we were informed they were poſted above Lord Boyne's Houſe. When we came there they had left it about Three Hours, and had paſſed the Boyne above Slane. Finding that we did not come up with them, General Meyrick ſent on Lieutenant-Colonel Ord, with the Durham Cavalry, to overtake them, and keep them in Check, which he did about Four or Five Miles from us on the North Side of the Boyne Road to Ardee, and ſent back for a Reinforcement of Cavalry. I ordered Colonel Maxwell, with the Dumfries, with General Meyrick to move on, and they found the Rebels very ſtrongly poſted behind a Defile between Two Bogs, the Paſs only allowing them to paſs by Fours. The Cavalry drove in their advanced Poſt, and charged with great Spirit; but from the Poſition of the Enemy Colonel Maxwell thought it better to wait till the Infantry came up, which I did with the Sutherland Highlanders in a very ſhort Time, and advanced with my Battalion Guns. Whenever the Rebels perceived us, I ſaw them get into Confuſion, and they immediately broke in all Directions. I then ordered the Cavalry and Yeomanry to attack, and I followed with the Infantry to ſupport them. The Rebels got into the Bogs, and the Cavalry advanced, killed all they met with, and ſurrounded the Bog to the Height on the oppoſite Side. The Highlanders got into the Bog, and killed all that were in it. Thoſe who got out on the oppoſite Side were met by the Cavalry. From the Manner in which they diſperſed, I cannot give an exact Account of the Killed. We took a great Quantity of Pikes, Piſtols, Swords, Muſkets, &c. and Two Standards. General Meyrick got One Priſoner, who gave him ſome Information, and promiſed him more. He took him with him to Navan, ſo that I cannot report any Thing with Accuracy about him.

The Troops behaved with great Spirit, and bore a great Deal of Fatigue, particularly General Meyrick's Diviſion, with a Reinforcement from this of the Dumfries, and my Light Company has been out Three Nights. I am particularly indebted to the Gentlemen Yeomanry, and to Mr. Trettu Duheln, who ſerved me as a Guide. Any Body of the Rebels left went on towards Ardee. A great many got round the Hill on our Right, and came back to Slane, where they aſſembled near it, croſſed the Boyne, and went back towards Garriſtown, where I hope General Myers will fall in with them. I reported this to General Campbell laſt Night, being under his Command, and juſt now received a Note from him to inform you of it.
